

THE PEOPLE

Sunday 15 February 2009

DAVE KIDD

THANKS to the legal eagles at Mathys & Squire for e-mailing to let us know that the intellectual property rights to the All Blacks war dance, the Haka, have been returned to the Maori people.

Two questions. In case of an England World Cup football triumph, who owns the intellectual property rights to the conga?

And what would we do without our friends in the legal profession?